

University of Connecticut
College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Johann Peter Gogarten
Board of Trustees Distinguished Professor
Department of Molecular and Cell Biology

Wednesday, January 12, 2011

To whom it may concern

Re: Lisa Davidson of Woodstock, CT

My family has personally known Lisa Davidson for over 7 years and we have known of her for more than 20 years as we have common friends in California who have always been most positively talking about her.

She is an absolutely trustworthy, highly intelligent and extremely pleasant and helpful person. She has a very warm and caring personality with a great sense of humor and we have always admired her practical talents – she is a very good cook, an amazing gardener and a very impressive homemaker. Besides she is an experienced real estate broker who can deal with any problem that needs to be solved, be it paperwork or the organization of a complex trip or any kind of social event.

Lisa is very well traveled and she is a very interesting conversation partner. Her delightful manner and attitude towards life makes her a perfect companion.

My wife and I have been very happy to hear that she might use her all-round talents and skills as a personal assistant to people who might be in need of help.

We all might find ourselves in a situation one day where we cannot manage without practical help and it is good to know that someone like Lisa would be available to apply her many talents to assist in all matters of life.

If anyone would want to interview us about Lisa Davidson we would be more than happy to speak on her behalf.

Sincerely

J. Peter Gogarten
Board of Trustees Distinguished Professor
Department of Molecular and Cell Biology

Co-Chair of the Bioinformatics Facility at the UConn Biotechnology/Bioservices Center